Metelytsia presents 30th Spring Concert

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

The 30th annual Spring Concert for Elk Point Metelytsia Ukrainian Dance Club on Sunday, May 3 was also a homecoming for some former club members, who welcomed the large and appreciative audience with bread and salt in the traditional Pryvitannia. Wanda and Laryssa Cochrane, Carol and Andrea Lee, Elena Drobot, Michelle and Kenna Hillebrand, Brandi Sakowsky and Karen Kendal wore the costumes of five regions of the Ukraine for the first number to grace the stage of the Elk Point Arts and Leisure Centre.

Group Four dancers Seanna Ewsiuk, Andrea Bader, Ashley Wozniak, Elizabeth Orr, Leigha Bishop, Lindsey MacDonald, Taylor Cochrane and Savannah Plaska performed a dance of the mountainous Hutzul region, their primitive hide slippers flashing as they performed fast turns and high leaps around the bonfire that gave their dance, Vohan, its name.

The club's smallest dancers, Carly Hawryluk, Katelyn Boratynec, Josef Theriault, Ty Smereka, Jorja Theriault and Charlie Rogal, celebrated the arrival of spring with the sprightly Vesnianka.

Taylor Cochrane was the first of two soloists, with a high-spirited Hutzul dance, while Leigha Bishop's solo showed the graceful footwork from the Polissian region.

Group Two, made up of Paige Henderson, Sam Henderson, Mickal Pilisko, Hank Rogal and Christopher Boratynec, danced the Kozachok, a dance performed for over 100 years in Canada.

Group Four returned to the stage with a spirited dance from the northwestern Ukraine, the Volynski Tanets.

The first half of the concert wound up with a number by Group Three dancers Megan Hawryluk, Madison MacDonald, Kira Brunner, Ashton Ewasiuk, Bryce Osinchuk and Jayden Plaska, who danced the national dance of the Ukraine, the energetic Hopak.

Following the intermission, all four groups combined their talents to tell the story of the Ukrainian settlers coming to Canada by ship, traveling west by train, claiming homesteads, breaking and planting the soil, harvesting their crops and celebrating the harvest, once it was safe from mischievous mice and hungry crows, with a disagreement with a wayward cow along the way. This delightful number was also performed at the club's Malanka celebration.

Group Four performed the final dance of the afternoon, a high stepping and foot-stamping Bukovynski.

MC, Maruska the Ukrainian gypsy, called all the dancers on stage, where they were introduced by Vi Wozniak and presented with their certificates, plaques and year plates. Graduation gifts were presented to Laryssa Cochrane and Andrea Lee, who are leaving the club after 12 and 11 years, respectively.

Elk Point Healthcare Centre expanding services

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point Healthcare Centre will be offering a new service, which could be in place as early as this week, according to Dr. Drew Ramful and Dr. Ayobami Oyeboode, who say the new Well Women's Clinic will be available each Thursday.

"There is a concern that women aren't getting their annual checkups, including pap tests and breast exams, because they aren't comfortable going to a male doctor," Dr. Ramful says. "This clinic will be operated by a woman."

RN Lindsay Malachowski has just finished specialized training in Edmonton on how to conduct the examinations, Dr. Ramful added. She will be working out of Dr. Oyeboode's office on Thursday mornings, and out of his office on Thursday afternoons, and "depending on the time the woman wants to come in, she can call the appropriate office for an appointment."

Malachowski can involve the doctors for backup for other medical issues that arise, and Dr. Oyeboode says, "we'll be right there if we're needed."

He adds that Malachowski got good grades in her course and is "ready to set the ball rolling."

Rezoning bylaw defeated after hearing

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Following a public hearing at which of the property owners expressed concerns over the change, Elk Point town council defeated the second reading on a bylaw that would see four lots along Highway 41 rezoned from Highway Commercial to Medium Density Residential. The rezoning had been sought by the owners of one of the lots, who wished to renovate their dwelling.

The current zoning allows residential as a discretionary use, and allows buildings to be resided and have decks built on, but does not allow the construction of additions.

With two councillors wanting to see the property remain commercial and two wanting just one lot to be rezoned, Mayor Parrish Tung had the deciding vote, and said he didn't think rezoning "would be in our best interest at this time. It would impede future development."

Financial Statement

Auditor Barb McCarthy went over the town's 2008 financial statement with council, which showed the town operating in the black, with what Mayor Tung deemed "a nice surplus." However, he feels that the next budget "will be a little tougher."

McCarthy told council their reserves are up from the previous year, and "you could borrow a lot of money if you wanted to."

Economic Development

Economic development coordinator Bob Bezpalko said the EDC had given support in principle to focusing on the proposed water park. Recreation coordinator Valerie Lazicki "made a spectacular presentation."

Lazicki suggested the construction start with one part of the park, finish that and then go on to another, town manager Myron Goyan said.

"My recommendation would be to have the EDC handle the project," Bezpalko noted, and asked council if the EDC's mandate would allow them to spearhead such an undertaking.

Coun. Dwayne Yaremkevich asked if EDC funding could be used to match grants.

Mayor Tung said that either the EDC or the town could apply for grants for the project, and "Personally, (the EDC) have my blessing."

Bezpalko said he has reviewed council's planning session last fall, "and I'm proud to say, we're moving along" with the recommendations coming out of the session.

Regional Water

Council discussed the Regional Water Study, and Mayor Tung said Elk Point's "overall goal is to have 24/7 water, which would cost $3 million if we go by ourselves." Council voted to join the Regional Water Study.

Public Works

Council approved a recommendation from the public works committee to purchase a new public water dispenser, because the current unit is obsolete and parts are no longer available. They also agreed that public works superintendent Jay Duffee could start looking at dump trucks.

Nurse's Week

Mayor Tung proclaimed May 11 to 17 as Nurses' Week in Elk Point, and council agreed to purchase three fruit baskets for the Healthcare Centre staff.

Lane Closures

Final reading was passed on both outstanding bylaws approving the closure of lanes. The lane property will be sold to adjoining residents.

MSI changes

Mayor Tung said that when Minister of Municipal Affairs Ray Danyluk spoke at the Alberta Library Conference in Jasper, he indicated that, "there is no way that (funding to assist) libraries will be cut out of MSI." He added that there has been no word yet on any cutbacks to Elk Point's MSI funding.

Healthcare Centre

Funding for the new program and others like it around the province came from the government through the Primary Care Networks, Dr. Ramful says. Elk Point and St. Paul healthcare centres make up one PCN group, and "the government allocates money to the doctors in a group, on the basis of the number of patients they see."

The Well Women's Clinic is "just a start," he adds. "We hope to extend it to offer foot care and diabetic care."

The primary aim of the programs is "prevention therapy. It's a better way to improve the health care of the public," Dr. Ramful says.

Chronic disease management is also part of the concept, Dr. Oyeboode says. For example, "Hypertension management is number one in the prevention of strokes."

A very simple test is now available to screen for cancer of the bowel, and is "one more aspect of the clinic," Dr. Ramful says, "and we will encourage everyone 50 and over to be screened, but this will be further down the road."

The Well Women's Clinic will also offer a variety of health-related information, he adds, and "hopefully, people will use it."

The slow trickle of response to the Elk Point Canada Day Committee's annual request for donations toward the July 1 celebration has the committee thinking of ways they can cut expenses without cutting into the day's break-fast-to-fireworks schedule of activities.

Only $2,150 had been collected by the time of last week's meeting, just over a quarter of the budgeted $8,200 for the day-long event.

Fortunately, some events are supported by their own sponsors, including the chamber of commerce pancake breakfast, Strong Man competition, Elks Lodge supper and Farm Survival Challenge, and some of the costs for the Canada Day Idol, and the food vendors operate independently of the committee. The committee's budget includes advertising, sound systems for the stage show and Canada Day Idol, parade band and prizes, prizes for the children's activities and the house and yard decorating competition and the fireworks display.

The committee went through the day's lineup. A volunteer is required to lead the bike parade, to ensure participants proceed in a group. The afternoon children's activities are in the process of being organized, and afternoon stage show headliner Harry Rusk has confirmed his attendance, although the other potential performers had not done so to date. The Farm Survival Challenge will be located south of the tennis courts, and will have some bleacher seating for the audience. Fireworks will be located north of the outdoor stage.

Dee Pankiw told the committee she now has sponsors for the overall winner of the Canada Day Idol competition, in the form of a demo portfolio, with three hours recording time from AstroMusical Studio, St. Paul, a portrait sitting and prints from Gilbert Photography, Elk Point, 20 CDs with jewel cases and liners from Black Box Studios, Edmonton, and letterheads, business cards and presentation folder from WeeWrite Consulting, Elk Point. She also has a gift certificate from Kelly's Closet for the best performance by a junior competitor (14 and under).

Take the hint, join the effort

The past week has seen several groups making an all-out effort to clean up their, and our, environment.

Elk Point Elementary School students got the ball rolling last week when they collected bag after bag of winter's debris in their schoolyard. On Saturday, Elk Point 4-H Multi Club was out in full force to clean the ditches along Moosehills Road, while the congregation of Elk Point Christian Community Church was doing a similar job along Murphy Road. On Sunday, the Elks Lodge members were out at Kehewin Lake giving their Wilderness Park campground a through spring cleaning.

This week, the Town of Elk Point is hoping as many volunteers as possible will come out on Thursday afternoon and evening, to help tidy up the town. Coming up later in the month, don't forget the Hazardous Waste Roundup where you can dispose of chemicals, paint and more. Let's all join the effort toward a cleaner Elk Point.

GUEST COLUMN

Overcoming weather

It is now May and it is the time many gardeners want it to be for sure spring so they can work outside in the dirt. They want to prepare the garden spot. The saying is: "wait until the May long weekend before you plant anything. And be sure you plant only what goes in the ground. Don't put out your bedding plants yet. Wait until the first of June for those."

Overcoming weather is like overcoming whatever feelings we have about it. Each season gives us something to talk about it. And yes, each season can have something negative and positive. For example, in Spring we don't want to plant the gardens too soon, because of the possibility of spring frost. The positive side is that spring is a change from winter. Spring brings out the time of newness, refreshment and new birth of everything in nature. So yes, of course it is gardening time. Speaking of Gardening, weather and yes, Mother's Day, Ruth Szukalowski tells a story in "Chicken Soup for the Gardener's Soul" entitled: "My Money Tree".

"For years I wanted a flower garden. I'd spend hours thinking of different things I could plant that would look nice together. But then we had Matthew. And Marvin. And the twins, Alisa and Alan. And then Helen. Five children. I was too busy raising them to grow a garden. Money was tight, as well as time. Often when my children were little, one of them would want something that cost too much, and I'd have to say, "Do you see a money tree outside? Money doesn't grow on trees, you know." Finally, all five got through high school and college and were off on their own. I started thinking again about having a garden. I wasn't sure, though. I mean, gardens do cost money, and after all these years I was used to living on a pretty lean, no-frills budget. Then, one spring morning, on Mother's Day, I was working in my kitchen. Suddenly, I realized that cars were tooting their horns as they drove by. I looked out the window and there was a new tree, planted right in my yard. I thought it must be a weeping willow, because I saw things blowing around on all its branches. Then I put my glasses on - and I couldn't believe what I saw.

There was a money tree in my yard! I went outside to look. It was true! There were dollar bills, one hundred of them, taped all over that tree. Think of all the garden flowers I could buy with one hundred dollars! There was also a note attached: "IOU eight hours of digging time. Love, Matthew." Matthew kept his promise, too. He dug up a nice 10-by-15 foot bed for me. And my other children bought me tools, ornaments, a trellis, a sunflower stepping stone and gardening books. That was three years ago. My garden's now very pretty, just like I wanted. When I go out and weed or tend my flowers, I don't seem to miss my children as much as I once did. It feels like they're right there with me. I live up in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, where winters are long and cold, and summers are way too short. But every year now, when winter sets in, I look out my window and think of the flowers I'll see next spring in my little garden. I think about what my children did for me, and I get tears in my eyes - every time. I'm still not sure that money grows on trees. But I know love does!"

So there you go. With Mother's Day this coming Sunday, and May being gardening planning, and hopefully planting time, instead of sending your Mother flowers, maybe you can find a way to help her plant her garden of flowers. So to all Mothers, Happy Mothers Day and may the weather be good to you as well.

Elk Point's new running enthusiasts were caught on action midway around the course on the first night of their Learn to Run course.

Batter up ... at last!

Today's column is dedicated in memory of my father John Bassett, who passed away on this very day, May 5 1995. He always told me "They'll remember you when you're gone, but not for long." Well I hate to say it, Dad, but I think you're wrong, 14 years now and I still think of you every day.

I don't have to feed you any old spaghetti stories this week. Even though we do have more chapters for the book, the stories will have to wait for now, because finally we got some relief, something called sunshine and heat. Finally after all these cold weeks we get to take it off. The winter coats, gloves and toques that is. Just don't put them away yet, May long is still coming and there is bound to be some more chilly weather.

"Take me out to the ball game." Sunday was a magnificent day to play a ball. The Sox have been practicing for the past three weeks, with their winter coats on of course, but it isn't the same as playing. They needed some real competition to dust off all the cobwebs built up over the winter and lined up an exhibition game against the newly formed St. Paul senior ball team that includes a former resident of Elk Point and a super athlete, Kerry Loughran.

Review Sports

Dylan Berg all got some action on the mound, chucking an inning or two each. Two other veterans from last year's provincial silver medal team include, sensational shortstop Brett Romanovich and another golden glove infielder hailing from Bonnyville, "J.C." Jordan Croteau. Matthew Church, a young rookie from Bonnyville, is playing on the Sox this year as well and back with the team after taking a year off, we are thrilled to have Dewberry product, outfielder Ben "Radar" Blacklock.

The bats were a little rusty on Sunday, something we expect at the beginning of the year, but not to worry, we know these guys will come through and crank them when the time comes as the season wears on. The coaching staff, Lorn Berg, Remi Joly, Dwayne Romanovich, bat boy Cy "Young" Romanovich and myself, know this is, as always, a work in progress, but what's a better way to spend the day. It was just great to be outside wearing only a t-shirt, enjoying the sunshine and eating sunflower seeds.

This coming weekend the Sox travel to the Big Egg, Vegreville, to start their league play, playing two games on Saturday and one on Mother's Day Sunday.

And now for the K.A. Campbell quote of the week. "If you're going to win the Stanley Cup, you've got to go top shelf." Last week's answer to: "You yell at them today, they laugh at you, and then you're gone." - Jenny Roberts, hockey coach.

On the run

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point's newest recreational pursuit got underway last Monday, when instructor Nathalie Boudreau came to town to get more than a dozen new runners off on the right foot at the Learn to Run course.

"I'm living proof that anyone can get in shape and run a marathon," Boudreau said, adding that before she took up the sport, seven years ago, she was "severely overweight" and lacking energy. Now 70 pounds lighter, she is passing on her enthusiasm to those interested in increasing fitness through running.

Upcoming sessions during the remaining nine weeks of the program will focus on slow stretching, setting goals, nutrition, cross-training, clothing, gadgets and motivation,

Boudreau encouraged participants to run three times per week, and suggested they may want to meet and run together between the class sessions. She also suggested everyone create a journal, with entries every time they've been out for a run.

"I find it motivating," she noted

Moving up

One of the annual rites of spring in Elk Point is the advancement of Sparks, Brownies, Guides and Pathfinders, as the girls who have completed the requirements for each level under the direction of Margaret White and Germaine Labrie move up to the next level.

The small but enthusiastic group, along with their parents and siblings, gathered in the F. G. Miller High School library last Tuesday evening for the ceremony.

Sparks Rhianna Bjorkman, Katelyn Boratynec, Kolbie Poitras and Ashley Kowalchuk added their personal rainbows to the giant rainbow as Brown Owl Labrie recited a poem. Brownie Hannah Ganske welcomed the newcomers to the pack.

Hannah, too, was on the move, placing her toadstool logo on the big toadstool as she moved up to Guides, where she was welcomed by Guider White and the current Guides.

Guide Rachael Walton, received her five-year pin before moving up to Pathfinders, while Kaylee Poitras, who will still be in Guides next year, accepted her three-year pin.

Pathfinder Erin Labrie, who started out in the group as one of the Sparks, accepted her seven-year pin.

Members of all levels also received the badges they have earned this year during the ceremonies.

A beautifully decorated cake and other snacks wound up the evening.

Elk Point Sparks, Brownies, Girl Guides, Pathfinders and their leaders took part in last Tuesday's Advancement ceremony in the F. G. Miller High School library.

The participants of the April 21 Prevention of Alcohol and Risk-Related Trauma in Youth (P.A.R.T.Y.) Program held a wrap-up session last Thursday, with Trina Napier of Alberta Health Services and Addiction starting out by distributing the same questionnaire the Grade 10 students answered at the pre-P.A.R.T.Y. session on April 15, and then discussing the answers with the teens.

Participants filled out copies of "My P.A.R.T.Y.

Reminder," with Napier asking each to "fill in something you will always remember about the program, something you know you can control, and a promise to yourself."

The reminders were put into envelopes the participants addressed to themselves, and will be returned to them at the end of the school year.

Each also received a "Contract for Life," an agreement between the participant and another person, agreeing that both parties will always have a sober ride home, and "that you will be there for them and they for you," Napier said. "We prefer it would be between you and your parents or another adult."

The agreement states the willingness of those who sign to pick up the other person at any hour, from any place, with no questions asked and no argument at that time, when needed. "You can discuss the situation later."

Napier said she would "really encourage you to talk this over with your parents and sign this."

Participants also filled out a post P.A.R.T.Y. evaluation, noting what was good and what they felt could be improved, "what you would like future programs to see. Please take this seriously," Napier asked.

"You guys were the guinea pigs" for some parts of the program that have not been utilized at similar programs in St. Paul, she noted.

"I appreciate your feedback and your patience. You were an awesome group."

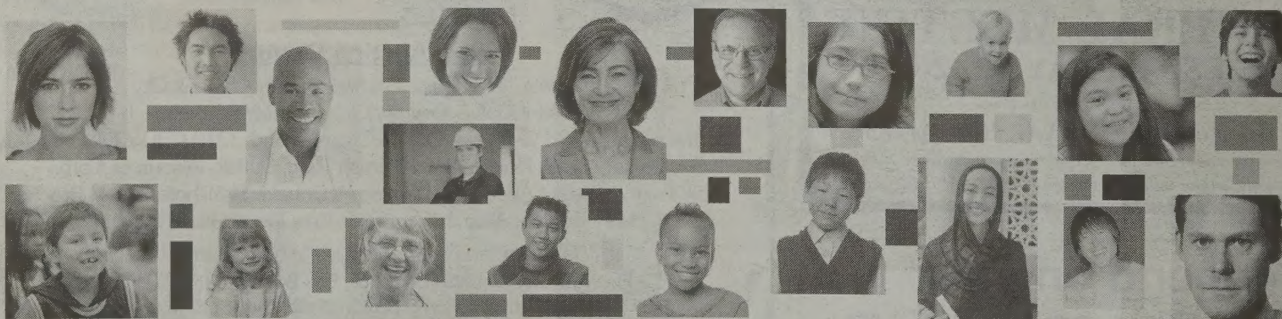

In closing, she said she would "really encourage you to talk about what you saw and did at the P.A.R.T.Y. session. Please take something from this experience and stay safe."

Wasn't that a P.A.R.T.Y.?

Mooswa Cemetery beautification to continue in 2009

BY TRACY KJENNER
Review Contributor

Mooswa Cemetery committee held its annual general meeting on April 20. With the improvements made to the cemetery last season, the group was eager to hear about possibilities to continue the beautification project this year.

Without the volunteer help and various donations last season, the new frontage fence would not have been constructed. This was a time consuming but very rewarding project and the committee looks forward to continuing the fencing project this season.

A request is being sent out to all families who have family members or friends interred in Mooswa Cemetery. Please consider volunteering for the beautification project by contacting Don or Barb Anderson (780-724-3811) or to have your name included on the list for general maintenance of the grounds, please contact Tracy Kjenner (780-724-2536).

As a committee we are proud of the efforts made thus far and would like others to be part of the continued efforts. What do we need? We need help with cutting pipe, welding, painting, grass cutting (please be prepared to bring your riding or push mower, gas powered weed-eater, gas powered leaf blower, etc.), garden creation, shrub planting, and the list can go on.

If you are unable to assist in physical ways, perhaps you might consider making a monetary donation toward the purchases necessary to complete our fencing project or to create our Memorial Gardens. Money donations may be sent to Mooswa Cemetery, c/o Box 312, Elk Point, AB T0A 1A0.

Our vision is to have the cemetery be a reflection of our commitment to the community and to our family and friends. Please consider being part of this vision.

Everyone seems to be more than ready for spring, but lately the weather man doesn't always agree. We have been doing some spring cleaning at the library, so be sure to stop by and check out our supply of weed-ed paperbacks - great to stash in the trailer for that summer camping trip.

We also have some great new books this week.

"The Naturally Clean Home - 150 Super-easy Herbal Formulas for Green Cleaning" uses common kitchen ingredients such as baking soda and lemon juice, so you can get rid of harmful chemical cleaners from your home for a healthier family and a healthier planet.

"Consumer Guide to Home Energy Savings" tells how you can save money and save the earth.

"Green Remodeling" gives you a start toward an eco-friendly home.

We also have some great new junior and young adult books you won't want to miss.

What you need to know about being prepared for emergencies

Disasters and emergencies can occur anywhere, anytime. Albertans need to be prepared and able to cope for at least the first 72 hours after a disaster or an emergency has occurred.

There are three simple steps to help you be prepared for an emergency:

- Know the risks in your community or region.
- Create a plan in advance that will help you and your family know what to do.
- Get and maintain an emergency kit.

For more information on how to ensure your family is always prepared for emergencies, visit www.aema.alberta.ca.
